

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book would not have been finished if it were not for the encouragement of two writers, who also happen to be parents: Judith Chance and Rick Gibbs. Their direct feedback and enthusiasm prompted me to write and work until we all felt it was a significant manuscript.

This book would not be in your hands if it were not for the foresight of Marlene Lacey and Blue Grama Publications. Like all good professional arrangements, we worked as a team to bring these ideas into print.

There are many who have had important influences and given great encouragement to my writing since 1966: John Howse, Paul Upton, Marty Oordt, Robert Runte, Brian Titley, Dr. Pamela Hinds, Dr. Martin Egeler, Joan Macleod, Eugene Stickland, Terry and Mary Shillington, Bob Wilson, Steve Wilson, Peter Hankoff, Reid Seibert, Barb Layton, Carol Steen, Tim Rollingson, Clayton Roe, Gilbert Gluck, Ethel Parley, Janet Christiansen, Clarence and Rita Lamorie, Lois Habel, Compassionate Friends, Alex Whitfield, Terry Wickstrom, the Walton family, and teachers and friends who asked about the story, read the articles, and came to the readings of my play, Walking Upright Through Fire: they kept saying this is important, go further.

A special thank you to Judy Coppage, my agent. Her patience and encouragement will be rewarded some day.

Nothing could happen without the interest and encouragement of my wife Sandy. And ultimately, thank you to Josh, a true example of excellence in life.
